

OKKI NOKKI

Record Cleaning Machine

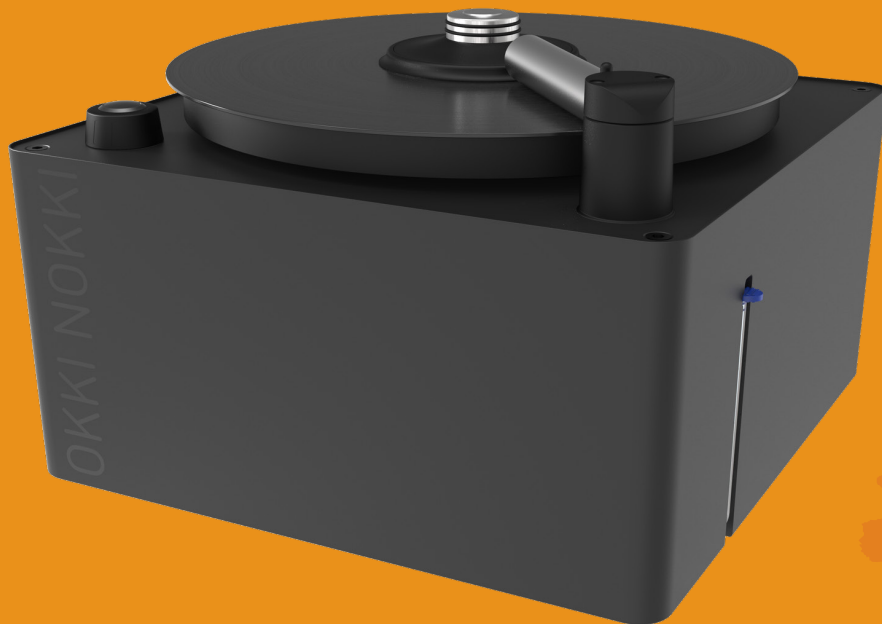

"I can vouch for this Okki Nokki, because I checked it personally."

Sanne Bezem, CEO

The first Okki Nokki was designed by Johan Bezem and got produced back in 1997. Nowadays this record cleaning machine is sold all over the world with Okki Nokki's new CEO, Sanne Bezem at the helm. The latest version is the Okki Nokki RCM One-DV. Okki Nokki is Rotterdam slang for thumbs-up, RCM stands for Record Cleaning Machine, DV for Dutch Version, and Sanne Bezem for quality. She is all about tomorrow's vinyl care and awesome sounding analog music. The RCM One-DV is as simple as it is effective. With just one control knob, an LP is cleaned deep down in its groove. All you have to do is apply the cleaning fluid, rub it in with the special application brush and let it be sucked dry by the powerful vacuum tube. The result is a clean and dust-free record that sounds better than new after cleaning. The highs have more definition and the lows are smoother than before. A comparative study in the renowned Dutch hifi magazine HVT has shown that the Okki Nokki is one of the best and quietest record cleaning machines.
